

IDII | Applied Dreams | Brief

February 27 - March 10, 2006

Social Agents of Change

Our identities are changing due to our constant exposure to enabling technologies.

Our old physical identities, fixed to a house, an address, a tax number, private, detached, individual, introvert, seem increasingly at odds with our new electronic identities, mobile, self-published, publicly exposed, extrovert, shared, accessible, communal.

Simultaneously, an interconnection between individuals, commercial and authority is leading to the increasing relevance of self-organising, temporary socio-spatial communities and to the creation of micro-economies.

Evaluate the evolution of hardware, software and service paradigms through these lenses:

Social agents of...

- Integration
- Collaboration
- Activism
- Control
- Play

Internal Faculty IDII

Neil Churcher

Fabio Sergio

Internal Faculty iDesign

Pietro Turi

Visiting Faculty

Ashley Benigno, R&D Handset and Applications, 3 Italy

Visiting Expertise

Christian Palino

Applied Dreams Project Manager

Alie Rose